Applications for 2026 grants opened today, and K-12 public and nonprofit private schools in 17 states may apply for funds of up to $50,000 for physical improvements, material

"Supporting schools isn't just something we do at Casey's – it's who we are, and we couldn't be more excited to continue the positive impact on students and teachers in our communities again this year," said Katie Petru, Director of PR, Communications and Community at Casey's. "Whether it's a new playground, technology upgrades or band equipment, these grants are making a real difference, and it's all possible thanks to the generosity of our guests, team members and partners."

Since launching in 2020, the program has now raised $6.3 million, and this year's $1.3 million total includes nearly $1 million in guest donations, just over $240,000 from Coca-Cola and $100,000 from Casey's. In-store round up campaigns are powered by Round It Up America®.

Recent examples of Cash for Classrooms grants in action include:

- Leavenworth Senior High School (Kan.) used its $25,000 grant to update its culinary space, fostering its students' passion for culinary arts in a safe and sanitary environment.
- Partin Elementary (Van Alstyne, Texas) received $26,000 to purchase Thinkbooks for teachers and iPads for students in the school's technology center.
- Perryville Elementary (Ark.) expanded its playground with accessible features for students with disabilities to enjoy structured physical activities thanks to its $24,921 grant.
- West Branch High School (Iowa) received $41,255 for new band equipment, allowing students to participate without financial barriers.

Grant applications open today with a November 14 deadline, and recipients will be notified in March 2026. To apply and learn more about Casey's Cash for Classroom grants, visit caseys.com/community.
